Welcome to our live broadcast this evening from the amphitheater where the stands are packed for the duel of champions between the UAHS and Saint-Ange. Here, on this magnificent site built on the ruins of an ancient cathedral, the atmosphere is truly charged! Before the dumbfounded eyes of several thousand spectators, Ange Saint-Juste is confronting Chance d'Estain, who is defending the colors of the UAHS, a school dragging around a devilish reputation on account of persistent rumours that state their courses seem intended more to train villains than our future heroes. Chance has learned from her partners at the university that they forged her a blade in the fires of hell. But will this shining example of student solidarity be enough to face the terrifying Claudehemor, the human sword wielded by Ange, and his sword-shattering strikes? It is difficult to say, but in regardless, the duel has begun again after a first round dominated by Ange Saint-Juste. Everything seems to point towards Saint-Ange being crowned the best hero school once again this year, so one-sided has the duel been.

Be sure not to miss the stunning conclusion!
